Maturity and genuine caring are more important than education for crisis telephone volunteers, according to Eleanor Allen of Cucamonga, director of volunteers for the West End's Suicide and Crisis Intervention Service (SCIS).

"It's what's inside you personally that matters, not your education," she said and added, "Maturity is the key — plus a genuine caring for people."

The crisis line is holding a series of training sessions for volunteers, who attend 12 training sessions to learn how to help troubled people.

Training includes role-playing and discussion as well as training in telephone technique by Upland psychologist Dr. Howard Schuman, who founded SCIS.

Council backs residents: rejects shooting, home

By Lynne Locke

Two Upland neighborhoods won victories Monday as the Upland City Council refused permission to establish a family home for teenage former drug users and revoked permission for evening shooting at a gun club.

In both cases council members noted the rights of home owners to preserve a residential atmosphere and protect their property values. The home was proposed for an existing house at 351 N. Laurel Ave.

Close to 25 residents of Laurel and Palm avenues and Vernon Drive opposed establishment of a home for a maximum of six teenagers who have successfully completed the Reach Out West End drug rehabilitation program.

Executive Director Eric Roth told the council the facility would provide a family home for teenagers who do not have good home environments.

Currently Reach Out West End "is curing kids and then sending them back" to the original environment which caused their drug problems, he said.

Roth said the Reach Out house parents are "much surer than the average parent" that their teenagers are not using drugs or involved in crime.

"We're very strict parents," he said noting that teenagers living in the home would not be allowed to associate with friends who would be a "bad influence."

Typical teenagers

Residents in the home would be typical teenagers going to high school or college and holding part-time jobs, according to Roth who called on Upland residents to carry their share of responsibility for rehabilitating teenage drug users.

"We have treated your children for years (in the Ontario facilities). Now it's time for Upland to carry its share of the burden," he said.

John Leatherman of Vernon Drive was the only adjacent resident to speak in favor of the project. "We need to consider rehabilitating people," he said noting he has "no objections" to a program, such as Reach Out, which successfully rehabilitates teenagers.

Residents opposed to the group home cited the residential neighborhood, parking congestion, and fears that the teenagers would be a bad influence on their own young children.

Mary Troop, who lives adjacent to the proposed home site, said she opposes a group home so close to the center of town and so close to her own home.

Her father-in-law, Ernie Troop, who works at the Youth Training School in Chino, said, "An outlying area would be a much better place (for a group home). The downtown area is not the place. I'm definitely against this type of thing in Upland."

Property Values

Bob Elder, a resident of Laurel Avenue, and Hubert Peck, who has rental property in the neighborhood, both opposed the group home because it might decrease their property values.

Council members upheld the neighborhood wishes, voting 3-1 against establishing the home. Councilman Hal Bailin voted in favor of the project with Councilman Bill Bottin absent.

"I'd very much like to see this program in Upland. But I do feel we have to consider the people in the neighborhood," commented Mayor George Gibson.

Calling the decision a hard one, Councilwoman Ina Petokas opposed the home based on the neighborhood opposition.

"I would hope to have more (neighborhood support) before I would be able to approve a residential rehabilitation home," she said.

Mayor pro tem John McCarthy said the group home rehabilitation program cannot be successful without the support of residents and added, "There is just too much opposition" to approve the home.

McCarthy said his denial was not a criticism of the Reach Out program which is financially supported by the city of Upland and noted the probability that the group home could be established in Ontario.

Bailin said, "The opposition tonight is one of fear of the unknown" and added that Upland will never have a program "for children on their way back" to society if the council waits for neighborhood support before the program is approved.

"The responsibility shown in this program merits a chance. I think we ought to approve it," he commented and noted, "We in Upland have an unenviable record in this kind of thing."

In the last two years Upland residents and the council have opposed establishment of a group home for mentally retarded adults and a group home for teenage girls with problems.

Shooting range

Also Monday night the council revoked permission for evening shooting at the Upland Trap and Skeet Club on 20th Street east of Euclid Avenue.

The gun club received council permission for evening shooting five months ago with stipulation that the shooting not constitute a public nuisance.

Several neighbors signed a petition declaring the shooting to be a public nuisance because it disturbs the tranquility of the residential neighborhood.

Hal Edmond, a resident of nearby Lexington Street, said, "I can't really understand having a shooting range in a residential area. It doesn't seem to fit."

Owner Raymond Mestas said a noise study had shown the actual level of noise is not the problem since a small airplane or a spraying machine causes as much or more noise.

There is "no justification" for the complaints on "purely noise basis," he said and added, the complaints is "primarily an objection to guns."

McCarthy favored prohibiting evening shooting but noted he opposed closing the gun club, "which was there many years before the residents."

Suicide and Crisis Intervention Service

Maturity, caring important for volunteers familiar with 127 community resource agencies. Each volunteer listener receives a booklet listing names, telephone numbers, and description of services offered by every agency in or near the West End.

Mrs. Allen said the crisis line needs at least "a dozen" more volunteers in addition to the 22 regularly and back-up listeners presently serving a weekly six-hour shift.

"What we really need is more men. A male caller sometimes wants to talk to another man," she said noting that only five of the regular listeners are men.

Volunteer listeners include truck drivers, career women, steelworkers, housewives, college students, and business men. Volunteers choose their own hours. SCIS receives an average of 150 calls per month and one of every 10 calls involves a potential suicide, Mrs. Allen said.

The remainder of the calls are for referral to community agencies ranging from low-cost babysitting services to senior citizen activities.

In other cases the listener simply provides a sympathetic ear for a caller who is experiencing a crisis. "What ever makes a person feel hopeless or helpless" is a crisis, she noted.

A call can last from two minutes to 2½ hours, according to Mrs. Allen who has answered nearly 500 calls herself. "The heaviest calling period seems to be between 6 p.m. and midnight, particularly during the holiday season and after a succession of gloomy days."

The typical caller is 25 years or older with more calls from women than from men. She said, "There's a growing number of calls from homosexuals or transvestites or their families. The most usual call, however, is still from a person going through a divorce or broken romance.

In 1976 there were 26 completed suicides in the West End. The number for 1975 was 29 spread throughout the communities of Ontario, Upland, Chino, Montclair, Alta Loma and Cucamonga, according to Mrs. Allen who said she cannot estimate how many lives have been saved by SCIS volunteers during the eight years the crisis line has been in existence.

SCIS is funded by the cities of Ontario and Upland as well as by private donations. People interested in serving as volunteers should call Mrs. Allen, 987-3549.

People seeking help for problems or a listening ear should call the SCIS telephone number, 985-4661.

Supervisors ok plan to limit home construction

By PETER WONG

Daily Report Staff Writer

In a key move toward settlement of the West End's sewage treatment crisis, county supervisors gave their approval Monday to a regional plan which limits home construction in the county's fastest growing area through mid-1978.

City councils in Upland and Montclair also ratified the plan Monday night.

The plan, which is retroactive to March 21 and runs for a 15-month period, will limit projected growth in the West End.

However, in terms of building permits for home construction, the plan will probably limit actual growth only slightly, since an estimated 6,000 permits were issued last year in the West End.

The plan is intended to restrict additional sewage flows in most of the West End to 2.5 million gallons daily until the overloaded Ontario sewage treatment plant can be expanded. Most of the extra sewage will probably be diverted in the meantime into a line normally used for industrial wastes.

The plan itself will limit home construction in the unincorporated tri-communities, the county's fastest growing area, to 3,458 through June 30, 1978.

This represents about 47 per cent of the 7,364 homes envisioned in the regional plan but is far less than the estimated 6,600 homes which could be built in subdivisions already approved in the tri-communities alone.

Ontario would be limited under the plan to construction of 2,306 homes, or 31.3 per cent; Upland, to 1,200 homes, or 16.3 per cent, and Montclair, to 400 homes, or 5.4 per cent.

However, the county and the three cities could also use the sewage treatment capacity they have been allocated for commercial and industrial development to allow additional home construction instead.

They can also draw from a regional reserve to provide for sewage treatment capacity for apartments, mobile home parks and other forms of multiple-family housing.

A special committee will administer the regional reserve.

Conceding that the growth plan wouldn't satisfy anyone completely, Supervisor Joseph Kamansky of Upland said, "No matter what decisions you make, somebody gets roughed up or figures it's not quite as fair to them as somebody else.... But somewhere, someplace, we've got to get this off the ground."

Kamansky, whose district includes the fast-growing tri-communities, argued against any attempt to upset the political balance reflected in the plan.

Supervisor Robert L. Hammock of San Bernardino threatened to vote against the plan unless the county's moratorium on filing of new residential development plans was relaxed to allow builders of multiple-family housing in the tri-communities to proceed.

Because the plan required approval from four supervisors — and because Chairman Robert O. Townsend was absent, reportedly due to illness — Hammock's vote was necessary.

Kamansky told Hammock angrily, "I wouldn't give you the time of day. If you feel that is your attitude, you just do what you want. But you're over here in San Bernardino, and we're out here in the West Valley, and we've got our problems."

Hammock yielded after an assurance that the issue could be raised again when that moratorium expires July 20.

The county and the three cities will require a guarantee from the Chino Basin Municipal Water District that it can handle sewage generated from most development. The district will keep track of how much capacity is being used by each community so that restrictions imposed by the regional growth plan are enforced.

The supervisors will decide next week how building permits in the tri-communities will be issued so that a rush by developers will be averted.

Since sewage treatment capacity — and connection of new homes to the regional system — will not be guaranteed after mid-1978, builders in the tri-communities may seek to obtain permits for the 3,458 new homes, whether or not they are ready to proceed with construction.

Workshops, film festival set

Nine workshops and a film festival will be featured in the Women's Day Conference at Chaffey College from 8:45 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 21.

A campus tour and discussion of Chaffey programs and services will be conducted by Chaffey staff members. Shown through the day will be films relating to women's roles in parental, working, minority and health contexts.

Scholarship perpetuates fond memory

Oliva Howard was in a wheelchair when she conducted her last three accounting class sessions at Chaffey College.

At the farewell session, Mrs. Howard learned that her 14 evening students had set up a $125 scholarship in her name. That was on March 21.

The scholarship was symbolic of their appreciation of one of a rare breed, a teacher who gives students the ultimate in individual attention and encouragement.

Mrs. Howard, a former high school instructor in Washington and Oregon, joined the night staff here in February of 1964. She was a part-time teacher at Chaffey who provided full-time service. To help students, she would be in the classroom an hour early and would make herself accessible at home.

"Students were an important part of her life," according to her husband, retired Chaffey College professor Gilbert A. Howard.

Cancer struck her three years ago, but she went right on teaching. The end came on April 21, a month to the day after that final class session.

However, her scholarship started to take on a life of its own. My May 11, the record showed that the scholarship had grown from $125 to $558. A $100 portion was from a former student; the rest from friends, neighbors, colleagues. (Eighteen households have also donated in her behalf to the American Cancer Society.)

When it grows big enough, a scholarship is able to perpetuate itself through the interest it earns. In effect, the person whose name it bears is granted — to paraphrase John Milton — "a life beyond life."

Persons interested in the further growth of the Oliva Howard Scholarship should get in touch with Jenny Dannelley in the Student Affairs Office. The telephone numbers to call are 987-1737, 822-4484 or 735-0242, extension 290.

Two study grants awarded

Two faculty members of the hotel and restaurant management department of California State Polytechnic University, Pomona, have been awarded study grants from the New Otani Hotel and Garden, according to Reed M. Powell, dean of the school of business administration at the university.

Receiving the grants are Ralph M. Scarrow of Claremont, associate professor, and Jeffrey M. Wachtel of Upland, lecturer.

In announcing the awards, Powell stressed the importance of the university's new Small Business Development Center (SBDC) in forming assistance groups within the university to aid business concerns. The SBDC at Cal Poly, Pomona campus, is the first center in the country to offer management development, technical information, product planning and development, and domestic and international market development assistance.

Similar centers will be introduced throughout the country at other universities to follow Cal Poly's leadership.

The Otani Hotel Group operates a chain of international hotels, and its newest property going up in Los Angeles is expected to open in early August.

Thomas P. Cullen, managing director of the hotel group, indicated that Scarrow will act as study supervisor, concentrating on management and technical problems of opening the 450-room property. Wachtel will study the training and supervisory operations at the departmental level.

Health News...

THAT HEADACHE HAS A PAINFUL MEANING

By Dr. W. P. Helzer, D.C.

Of all the so-called triumphs of the pharmaceutical industry, the "headache remedy" is the most dangerous to life and health.

I don't want to convey the image that headache pills are poison and are in themselves dangerous to life. (It should be remembered, however, the government has had to prohibit the distribution of certain "remedies" for this precise reason.)

The real trouble is that the less toxic and the more apparently effective remedy is more dangerous because it over-throws or suppresses a mere symptom, while the trouble caused by the symptom continues to progress, often until it's too late.

Pain, particularly headache pain, is the alarm bell which nature employs to signal "FIRE". And I don't need to remind you, ringing the "fire" alarm never put out the fire.

The long and short of it is that you are playing with fire if you treat a headache rather than its cause.

Sure, there are headaches that have a simple cause. The "morning-after" type, for instance. And it usually passes as soon as its cause — a clogged digestive tract — has been cleared.

Any other headache, particularly if it's chronic or recurring, will send the careful, intelligent person straight to the Doctor.

The causes of headaches are many. They include digestive, eliminative, kidney and heart troubles, eye-strain, infected tonsils, nerve pressure from spinal conditions, and sometimes (although very rarely) brain trouble itself.

In women, disorders of the generative tract are often the cause. Remember, in no condition will a headache be naturally eliminated until the cause has been determined and corrected.

And I'd like to think that's where we come in. Do not, however, come in under any delusion that you are bringing in any simple trouble which could be easily corrected with a 29¢ package of "Pain Killer."

Tips for older drivers

By John Shoemaker
Community Relations Coordinator
City of Upland

QUESTION: These are the problems that face an older driver in today's traffic:

As age progresses, hearing and eyesight are less keen. Judgement is slower. It takes longer to recognize traffic situations and to make the necessary decisions. Physical dexterity is weakened. Older people haven't the same ability to act with speed and decisiveness in an emergency. Older drivers are susceptible to injury and death. What would have been a minor accident some years ago could mean injury or death now. The older driver is apt to forget that the volume of traffic is increasing all the time and that new rules and regulations are being continually introduced.

In your repertoire, do you have any tips or suggestions for older drivers? P.A.

ANSWER: Not in my repertoire. But I was able to procure the following from the Automobile Club of Southern California, which I believe is excellent material for consideration.

- Get your doctor's frank advice about your driving. If he or she advises you to avoid heavy or fast traffic or night driving, follow the advice.
- Keep yourself fit and well. Drive only when you feel up to it.
- Don't drive after medication unless your doctor says it's safe to do so.
- Be alert at the wheel. Try to anticipate any sudden or unsafe actions by other drivers, pedestrians or children.
- Keep up to date on traffic laws and rules of safe driving. Help on this subject is willingly given by Department of Motor Vehicles, the police, safety organizations or motor clubs.

— Have a driving instructor check your driving and make suggestions. He or she can help you polish up your driving knowledge and skill and also inform you about current traffic laws and procedures.

— Plan every trip — short or long — before you set out. Avoid heavily traveled or high-speed routes. Stay away from routes or zones that bother you.

- Don't obstruct faster moving traffic by unreasonably slow driving. If you are impeding traffic behind you, pull off the highway and allow it to pass. Better still, choose another route or a less busy time of day or week.
- Keep your car and its equipment in safe condition. Take your car in for regular check-ups.
- Keep your windshield, headlights and your glasses clean.

Guest speaker

Larry E. Burgess will be guest speaker for the annual meeting of the Friends of the Upland Library at 6:30 p.m. Friday at The Arbor Restaurant, Upland.

Exchange student

Upland High School junior Cheryl Robnett has been accepted as a high school overseas exchange student to Finland by the Youth for Understanding (YFU) enrollment committee. In the past, the two-month assignment has also included a two-week excursion to Russia.

Youth for Understanding is a non-profit organization dedicated to international educational and personal enrichment programs for high school students. These programs focus on the experience of American students actually living as family members in another country. Students involved in the past have typically returned to America with an increased maturity and deeper understanding of the host country, its people, language, culture and values, according to YFU officials.

PTA award

Alta Loma High School PTA honorary service awards were presented to Lenore Spooner, PTA member and supporter, and Bob Fikes, Alta Loma High School electronics teacher and career resource person.

PTA officers for 1977-78 are Chris Sutart, president; Lorrain Wilhelm, vice president; Joy Nowotny, secretary; Janet Balding, treasurer; Tom Maxfield, auditor; and Bonnie Stammer, historian.

PTA book scholarships were awarded to Ralph Nicassio and Lynne Bronder, with Sally Jo Henderson as alternate.

Departmental awards were presented to Fernando Guerrucci, electronics; Jeff Anderson, math and science (Harry Cousins award); Mike Bement, journalism; Lynn Ober, art; Mike Castrovinci, foreign language; Sam Arnold, metal shop; Lori Vanderet, oceanography; Brian Cypher, science; Kim DeOrnellas, American government; John Rickey, math; and Lynne Bronder, graphic arts.

Service award

Mrs. Richard Ripley has been presented the Honorary Service Award by the Ontario-Montclair PTA Council in recognition of her years of service to her church, the schools, the Spanish Trails Council and Chaffey District Girl Scouting programs, the Fifth District PTA, the Ontario-Montclair School District Council PTA and local units.

PTA award

The Monte Vista School PTA recently presented Mrs. Lorraine Derbish, who teaches fourth and fifth grades at that school, with an honorary service award.

Mrs. Derbish was given the award for her work in textbook selection and ordering, her leadership in reading inservice programs and for her direction of the annual fifth grade Pilgrim Pageant. She has also served on numerous district and community education committees.

GATO BARBIERI — Tenor saxophonist Gato Barbieri will headline the Santa Monica Civic Sunday evening. Barbieri's debut album with A & M Records is titled "Caliente." Also joining Barbieri will be Lenny White.

Gato Barbieri puts together 'Caliente'

Gato Barbieri "Caliente" A & M SP - 4597

What's it like to be born in Argentina?

Influenced by Charlie Parker and John Coltrane and then becoming an overly sensational tenor saxophonist?

Well Argentinian Gato Barbieri would be the best qualified to answer that question because, to say the least, he is a sensational tenor saxophonist.

With his concert at the Santa Monica Civic just days away, his debut album on A&M Records best tells the story of Barbieri's free flowing, emotional and terribly romantic understanding for music and what he expects from his music.

"Where I want to arrive musically," Barbieri has said, "is the point at which I will be able to express what is in me through the horn as naturally as the act of walking or breathing. The way it is now, you have a thought and then you proceed to execute it. My dream is to eliminate that step in the process so that the music will flow instantaneously, the music will be so natural that other people will respond to it as naturally as the way it is made. It would be the beginning toward being natural in all things."

"Caliente" is not about a race track south of the border but an easy way to put yourself into just the right romantic mood you've always wanted a piece of music to do. Although Barbieri does play tenor sax, the jazz effect seems almost effortless and with the synthesizer is much more meaningful and romantic.

"Fireflies" and "Behind the Rain" are two tunes that are extremely imaginative. "Fireflies," like all tunes on "Caliente," is instrumental, a heart-pounding melody composed of keyboards and smoothing synthesizer backed up by a burning tenor sax.

Flying through the air on a magic carpet is the center feeling of "Fireflies."

"Behind the Rain" has a tremendously powerful thunderous effect mixed with a deep emotional heart throbbing and romantic feeling. Other than a fine keyboardist and synthesizer expert "Caliente" possesses other top experts in their respected fields: Ralph MacDonald, percussion; Eric Gale, guitar; and Lenny White, drums.

Although the title "Caliente" may suggest daily doubles, exactas and long shots, the best bet is Gato Barbieri at the Santa Monica Civic Sunday.

'Gord's Gold' gold album

"Gord's Gold," the Gordon Lightfoot greatest hits collection on Warner-Reprise, has been certified as a gold album by the RIAA.

"Gord's Gold" joins three other gold entries in the Lightfoot Warner-Reprise catalog: "If You Could Read My Mind," "Sundown," and "Summertime Dream" plus the single of "Sundown."

Lightfoot continues to tour both the United States and Canada and has been set to headline at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas this summer.

Pop album review

'Battle Axe'—top debut album

By Mike Del Rey
Pop Music Critic

The Billion Dollar Babies are nothing even remotely similar to Gato Barbieri or for that matter "The Babys" reviewed in these pages sometime back.

The Billion Dollar Babies, not "The Babys," have just released their debut album "Battle Axe" (PD-16 100) on Polydor records.

Lead singer and guitarist Michael Bruce along with lead guitarist and vocalist Mike Marconi with Bob Dolin, keyboards, synthesizers and vocals. Neal Smith, drums and vocals and Dennis Dunaway, bass and vocals, have a three dimensional sound. They make the drums sound as if they are in one position, the guitar in another, and the vocals in yet another.

Interesting lyrics mixed with above average harmonies lead to list of hard hitting hard feeling rock and roll.

Side one song one is a song that every person, male or female, can relate to. "I want to go out when I feel like it" is the plight made by all people under the legal age of consent. And "Too Young" deals with the little responsibility parents give their children.

Much more than a statement for freedom, "Too Young" comes across clean, listenable and enjoyable.

The hard hitting energy force removed from punk rock, and more educated than The Hollywood Stars, is incredibly well balanced for a debut album.

I guess this is as good a place as this to bring to light the past of these four characters of rock 'n' roll nostalgia.

Bruce, Dunaway and Smith were the original back-up group for Alice Cooper, sometime past.

Bruce wrote such Alice Cooper top 40 hits as "I'm Eighteen," "Under My Wheels," "Elected" and "Schools Out."

The ex-members each tell a different story on why they left, but in all it comes down to the fact that they have left. And "Battle Axe" is the prodigy of a very successful internship with Alice Cooper.

In exploring the album's "I miss you," "When are you coming home" are lyrics that delves deep into teenage love.

"Love Is Rather Blind" contains an ounce of Crosby Stills and Nash and incorporates a sensational use of the synthesizer.

"Rock N' Roll Radio" has a dialogue that's extremely catchy. "From New York to the L.A. Seas" explains teenage radio coverage.

"Basically we write lyrically for teenagers," explained Smith, "because I think that's a real important and vital audience, especially for rock. There will be a lot of fans who have never heard the original Alice Cooper group, fans that around 1973 with Billion Dollar Babies and Muscle of Love were maybe 10 years old, and are now 13 and 14. A lot happened in those years, so they could be a whole new audience for us. We also want to try to broaden our audiences a little bit. We write a lot of single material and then we write songs like 'Battle Axe' or a song Michael wrote called 'Rock Me Slowly,' which is more sophisticated, a hard rock ballad that anybody who likes music can appreciate. That's where I hope we can find success, in hitting people who just like music period, as well as rock fans. We'll still play rock, but we want to open up the audience as well."

Side two is definitely the promo side. Any tune on this side is top 40 material. "Ego Mania," "Battle Axe," "Sudden Death" and "Winner" could all break the charts at once.

"Ego Mania" is a straight forward instrumental hard hitting rock and roll tune that surpasses the ordinary blap and gab and gives the rock and roll enthusiast a chance to concentrate on pure clean, understandable music.

The title cut "Battle Axe" seems to run almost in three parts — "Battle Axe," "Sudden Death" and "Winner" — almost like a musical score from a Shakespearean play.

"Battle Axe" opens with synthesizers that perform a 17th century like operatic melody, almost a "Queen" effect. The vocals are clear but stay in the background. This sound is superlative and sounds sensational.

"Sudden Death," part two of the three-piece movement, continues the 17th century piece with a strong synthesizer that seems to put the listener up into the heavens. It's a very hard hitting encounter between piano, drums, lead guitar and synthesizer, almost a warlike situation between notes and rhythmic patterns.

And Finally "Winner" is the final movement of a very sophisticated piece of music. "Winner" is a fanfare, a finale, so to speak, in this constant struggle between notes.

Edwin Starr—personality and a deep soulful voice

By Mike Del Rey
Pop Music Critic

A dynamic personality with a deep soulful voice along with a dazzling smile was what Edwin Starr brought with him to his debut performance last Thursday at the Starwood. Turning the Starwood upside down and into a "Dick Clark" like "American Bandstand," Edwin Starr, including his emcee, The hallarious Fat Man, demonstrated a strong jazz oriented disco-rock flavor style of music.

Starr's style of performing has a taste of that international style of performing.

Starr's style has the taste of the international flavor, that is, it fits well anywhere at anytime.

At the Starwood to promote his current album Starr surprised the audience by opening up with material from his upcoming not yet recorded album "Music, Music and more Music."

Most of the lyrics, both off his current album and his upcoming album, center around love and the feelings that accompany being in love.

Starr indicated that his show is about "getting down," and by the way the audience took to the dance floor he was correct.

He spent quite a bit of time introducing each of his songs like they were pieces of art. Starr introduced "Looking At Your Picture," on his upcoming LP, by telling the audience "Each of you have hidden away in your hearts pictures, letters and cards." And with that more beautiful than her outside appearance.

Remarks like these, along with his stunning style of performing, turned Thursday evening into something more than just a concert — a memorable affair.

Hodges James and Smith were the supporting act. Three young vocalists, they demonstrated very entertaining harmonies with a very high variety of entertaining.

Slapstick comedy isn't new

By Don Ham
Editor

Slapstick comedy did not originate with the black and white films of the 1920s and 1930s.

How do I know this? Because I saw the "man with a ladder" scene last week in a musical comedy written by Moliere written in 1661.

Senior citizen days

The Universal Studios Tour is offering substantial discounts to senior citizens over 55 years of age and their families, June 3-12. Senior Citizens will save over 30 per cent on regular ticket prices during this special period and their families will receive a 20 per cent discount.

This special 10-day program is being offered by the tour in cooperation with the Los Angeles City Recreation and Parks, Los Angeles County Parks and Recreation, Los Angeles

"School for Husbands" will play again 8 p.m. tonight through Saturday in the university theater at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona.

In this slapstick scene, one of several in the play, Valere, played by Charles Ketter, ends up with his head between two rungs of the ladder while tending off disreputable men who are hired to get rid of him.

It seems that he has fallen in love with Isabelle (Wendi Radford), the ward and fiancée of the play's major character, Sganarelle (Barry Moore). And Sganarelle doesn't like it a bit.

Moliere uses other comedy devices, many of which we think of as modern television and theater techniques, such as the clever servant, the lazy lackies, and the pompous magistrate.

Sganarelle is the straight man, sure of his love from Isabelle (most of the time), easily flattered, plainly dressed, disliked by others because of his extreme possessiveness of Isabelle.

Isabelle is the young beauty, who has an uncanny ability to confuse and bolster the ego of Sganarelle, and an intense urging to get away from Sganarelle before he marries her. Sganarelle keeps her locked up at home and even goes so far as to hire three lackeys (Michael Key, Bruce Breedman and Fred Kellogg) to make sure she stays there.

The plot evolves around the efforts of Valere and his servant Ergaste (Kevin McDonald) to release Isabelle from the clutches of her keeper and secure her love for Valere.

How they finally do this involves Isabelle's sister Leonor (Carol Warner), her maid Lisette (Kathy Burns), and Sganarelle's brother Ariste (Monte Van Vleet), who plans to marry his ward Leonor.

The cast did a surprisingly good job for an opening night performance. Timing was perfect for the play, which consisted of rhyming dialogue and music. Everyone seemed to fit their part well. And I was mildly surprised at the outstanding singing ability of Moore and Miss Radford.

The chamber orchestra, conducted by Donald Ambrosio, who also played the violin, provided the perfect background music. The music didn't interfere with the singing or the comedy scenes. The orchestra also consisted of a viola, cello, four flutes and a bassoon.

Congress' act

Congress, in a joint resolution on June 22, 1942, codified civilian usage of the flag. Among the numerous prohibitions then established, it was ruled that the flag is not to be dipped to any person or thing, it should never be placed upon it any word or design, it should never be used as a receptacle for carrying anything, it should not be used to cover a statue or monument.

Information on fishing spots

The Department of Fish and Game is pulling out all stops to provide prompt, up-to-the-minute information on fishing opportunities throughout the state, the department has reported.

Latest wrinkle in the program of special services for fishermen concerned over dry-year conditions is a tape-recorded message from a Sacramento telephone number on the situation in the department's 17-county Region 2.

The taped message available at (916) 452-3564 includes a listing of a catchable trout plants for the week, open waters and water and fishing conditions. The message is retaped every Monday morning.

In addition to the taped message, the regional office on the campus of Sacramento State University answers questions from callers at (916) 445-0990.

Throughout the season, DFG regional offices issue weekly news releases to the media with information on trout plants in the five geographical areas of the state. Reports this year include water conditions and access information where applicable.

Information number for the eight northern counties of Region 1 with headquarters in Redding is (916) 246-6273.

RAINS HOUSE FIESTA — John Hart, who played title roles in television plays, Lone Ranger, Hawkeye and Jack Armstrong, will be the guest celebrity noon-4 p.m. Sunday at the fifth annual Fiesta at Casa de Rancho Cucamonga (the Rains House), 7869 Vineyard Ave., Cucamonga. Also included will be Western food, square dancing, a puppet show, demonstration of yarn dying with native plants, Navajo loom, ballads based on Cucamonga legends and pot throwing.

UCR presents comedy

RIVERSIDE — Pageantry, music, dance, mime — all are elements in a highly theatrical production of Shakespeare's classic comedy "As You Like It" presented by the Theatre Department at the University of California, Riverside, as its season finale.

"As You Like It" will play at UCR's University Theatre May 19, 20 and 21, with curtain at 8:15 p.m. Matinees are scheduled May 21 at 2:30 p.m. An outdoor processional and dance will begin approximately 20 minutes prior to each performance.

Director Jules Aaron tightened the play's loose time structure to a 24-hour period, rearranged and cut scenes, and took a very physical approach to this traditionally pastoral play "in order to bring out the many ironies of love and freedom in this temporary court idyl in the Forest of Arden," he said.

His directoral approach is "cinematic" in that it uses light, moving platforms and elevator units to segregate the action on a multi-leveled stage. The audience's focus shifts from area to area, functioning in much the same way editing does in film. Underlying the action is an original score by Ken DeRoche, performed with live and recorded Renaissance music, which works like a movie soundtrack.

The set design is by Gerry Hariton and the gothic and Renaissance costumes are by Nancy Wilkinson. The pre-show entertainment was written and directed by Mark O. Baillie, a UCR graduate student from Indianapolis, Ind. The company of 36 actors, dancers and musicians

Press Club meeting

Jay Rodriguez to speak

A KNBC-TV executive will talk about how a television station operates at this month's dinner meeting of the Press Club of Southern California.

The dinner will be held May 20 at the Sage Hen, 5261 Foothill Blvd., Upland. The social hour will start at 6:30 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

The speaker will be Jay Rodriguez, manager of press, publicity and community relations for KNBC-TV (Channel 4) in Los Angeles.

'Space Mountain'

Disneyland's spectacular new attraction "Space Mountain" is now open to Park guests.

Within "Space Mountain's" futuristic structure guests journey through unexplored galaxies, with the sensation of fantastic speed, as they whisk through their inter-stellar environment.

Six-passenger rockets take voyagers through a meteor shower and the ultimate penetration of "Superspace," where time is non-existent and distances are spanned at infinite speed.

With an exploding sound the craft will pass through an orange burst of fire as it plummets through a cosmic vapor curtain, finally buffeting down to landing speed at the Space Port.

Before he joined KNBC, Rodriguez owned a local public relations firm and owned a group of area restaurants. He once worked in the advertising department of the Pomona Progress-Bulletin.

At KNBC, Rodriguez is responsible for all press relations through the press and publicity department, and contacts with the community relations department.

He is also a member of the station's editorial board.

He is also in charge of the station's affirmative action program, which involves the recruitment, training and development of station employees, particularly women and minorities.

Rodriguez joined KNBC in April, 1969, as administrator of community relations. Later that year he was promoted to manager of that department and in 1975 was named manager for press, publicity and community relations.

He is a graduate of Bonita High School in La Verne. He also attended Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut and the University of California at Riverside, where he majored in business and public relations.

Rodriguez is a former vice president of the

A judge's dilemma

By State Senator H.L. "Bill" Richardson
In a courtroom, you occasionally hear of convicted criminals pleading for mercy — but did you ever hear of a judge doing so?

I have. I recently received a shocking letter from Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Harry Peetris. Judge Peetris was pleading for mercy — mercy from California's current sentencing laws.

You probably won't like what Judge Peetris said in his letter anymore than I did but I think you might be interested in hearing it.

Judge Peetris, in his letter, spoke of a case which was recently heard in his court. A man was convicted of several brutal murders. The evidence was clear cut. The man was criminally motivated, cold-blooded, and completely without any human compassion.

So, you say, what's the problem? The man obviously deserves the death penalty or at least life in prison without parole, right?

What he deserves and what he gets under our current laws are two different things. Let's look at the details of this case.

This particular killer got started in 1966. His first victim was killed in his efforts to take over a prostitution business. The woman he killed was sitting in her living room. The killer placed a gun in her ear and pulled the trigger. Sitting on the couch witnessing this horrible scene was the victim's 15-year-old son. Despite the boy's pleas for his life, the killer stuck a gun in the young man's ear and pulled the trigger. After all, the killer said later, he couldn't leave any eye witnesses. These two murders went unsolved for ten years.

Up until 1971, the killer served time in prison for a parole violation. After he was released, you guessed it, he killed again. His victim was a cocaine dealer. Some people might think he did society a favor but nonetheless, he took another life.

Our enterprising killer thought he was becoming quite adept at his craft. So much so that he decided to go professional. Now a hired killer, his fourth victim got the familiar gun in the ear. This time he fired three shots but the woman somehow managed to live — even though she remained partially paralyzed and had to walk with a cane.

Not wanting to jeopardize his professional standing as a hired killer, he returned two months later to finish the job. This time he fired the gun in her ear and in her eye. Then, just to be thorough, he fired at the back of her head and at her heart. The killer then jokingly said, "This time she's really dead." Somehow that's not too funny to me.

Most people would agree that this cold-blooded killer should be put to death. Unfortunately, not enough legislators agree with the people. As a result of an eleventh-hour bill passed last year, coupled with the Supreme Court's ruling against the death penalty, killers can now get off relatively easy.

Let's look at what choices Judge Peetris faced in sentencing this professional killer.

The judge thought the proper punishment would be death. The court ruling against the death penalty came during the killer's trial. The Supreme Court said there was no opportunity to consider mitigating circumstances. So much for the sentence of death.

The next lesser sentence would be life in prison without parole. That punishment is available for kidnapping for ransom with injury, trainwrecking with injury, and other similar crimes — but not for the crimes committed by this killer. So much for life in prison without parole.

The next lesser sentence would be to give consecutive sentences for each of the murders to be served separately instead of running at the same time. In this case, the killer would not be eligible for parole for 35 years. Unfortunately, Section 669 of the Penal Code requires that all of the murder counts merge into one.

As a result of our current laws in this case, this killer will be eligible for parole in five years and 10 months. Life is cheap in California.

Judge Peetris is frustrated and angry. He believes he can't impose a proper sentence, can't protect witnesses and can't protect society. Laws are what they are because the legislators choose to keep them as they are. Legislators are who they are because people elect them.

Are you as frustrated as the good Judge Peetris or could you be one of the many Californians who vote without knowing how your state representatives vote on law and order issues?

Richardson, a Republican, represents the 35th District, which includes San Dimas and La Verne.

Ayala creates task force

State Senator Ruben S. Ayala D-32, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Water Resources, has taken the lead in solving California's water problems.

"The administration's posture is of great concern to me," Ayala said. "To assure that the best interests of 22 million residents are represented, I have created a five-member legislative task force to advise both myself and the committee of the best, and most tenable, approach to meeting our state's long range water needs.

Ayala said he was exasperated over the suggested delays coming from the administration. "I want to ehbest advice."

John Teerink, William R. Gianelli, Ronald B. Robie, William Warne and Harvey Banks have been invited by Ayala to serve as members. All have been, or are, in Robie's case, the director of the California Department of Water Resources. Stephen A. Macola, chief consultant to the committee, will serve as an ex officio member.

"My only concern is for the people of the state," Ayala commented. "The people I have asked to serve are the outstanding non-partisan water men of California. They represent the administrations of Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr., Governor Ronald Reagan, Governor Edmund G. Brown Sr., and Governor Goodwin J. Knight.

local chapters.

"These medical groups are supported by public donation," Lancaster said, "and we need to obtain the maximum amount of medical services from each dollar. We should not be using the donations to pay state taxes."

"Without having to pay sales tax, these associations will be able to provide more information to the public about the prevention and detection of diseases," he noted.

The bill only applies to medical literature.

Bill would stop tax on medical literature

A bill to exempt the distribution of non-profit medical information from the state sales tax has been introduced by state Assemblyman Bill Lancaster (R-62).

Assembly Bill 1849 would permit medical societies and associations to purchase literature and sell it to their local chapters without paying sales tax.

Organizations such as the American Heart Association and the American Cancer Society must now pay tax on the medical literature they distribute through their

Brethren Church to hold Congress of Evangelism

Several members of the La Verne Church of the Brethren will represent the church this weekend at the Congress of Evangelism at the Fresno Church of the Brethren.

Brethren congregations in Arizona, California, Idaho, Oregon and Washington will be represented.

Inspirational leaders for the four-day congress will be: S. Loren Bowman and Rick Gardner of the denominational staff, Elgin, Illinois; Paul A. Cedar of First Presbyterian Church, Hollywood, and member of the Billy Graham staff; Marvin Chandler, executive director of the San Francisco Council of Churches; and Ernest L. Hastings, pastor, First Baptist Church, Everett, Washington. Those attending from the La Verne church will be: Lowell and Zeta Brandt, Robert and Arnelia Walker, Eugenia Brubaker, Leona Ikenberry, Leland Wilson and R. Truman Northup. Wilson will lead a workshop on social action outreach. Northup was on the planning committee.

The worship theme for the 10:30 a.m. service Sunday at the La Verne church will be "The Hazard and the Promise — The Middle Years." Leland Wilson will speak on the theme dealing with crisis of faith as it relates to the middle years, viewing both the hazards and possibilities.

After the service an all-church picnic will be held at San Dimas Canyon Park. The social and recreation commission is the sponsoring group. Those attending are asked to bring a main dish, salad or dessert and table service. Cold drinks will be provided. Games and activities will be held following the meal.

Lagnado new Rabbi at Temple Shalom

Rabbi Eli Lagnado has been elected to fill the position of Rabbi at Temple Shalom of Ontario, a Conservative Temple.

Rabbi Lagnado was selected from more than 50 applicants for the position of spiritual leader of the congregation. In addition to his Rabbinical qualifications, he has also served as a Cantor.

Since he is familiar with all the current teaching techniques of Jewish education, he will also serve as the principal of the Religious School of Temple Shalom. His experience includes teacher Bar/Bat Mitzvah classes, and he has conducted adult education courses. Rabbi Lagnado brings prestigious qualifications to the position. He has been trained in the chanting of both the Sabbath and High Holy Day services. His education includes study at the Rabbi Zlotnick Seminary in Johannesburg, Republic of South Africa.

Rabbi Lagnado is 40 years old. He and his wife, Liebe, have two children, ages 6 and 7. He said they are looking forward to coming to Ontario.

'All in the Family' theme for meeting

"All in the Family" will be the theme for the Presbyterian Church's Family Conference and Annual Synod meeting July 8-10 at the University of California at Irvine.

The Bunker Family will not be there, but all Presbyterian families — including singles, children and grandparents — are invited to attend. Child care and activities for children under 2 years old will be admitted free, those 18 and under for half price.

Spencer Marsh, a popular Presbyterian minister and author of "God, Man and Archie Bunker" (Harper and Row), will lead three convocations on the theme "All in the Family."

He will describe how Archie is really a cigar-smoking Adam, weekly creating God, people and everything else in his own image. Spencer will point out Archie's — and people's — misconceptions about God, themselves and the church.

Following his presentations, there will be time for theological reflection and the sharing of experiences in discussion groups.

Marsh is currently pastor of Brentwood Presbyterian Church in Los Angeles.

People attending the conference and Synod commissioners will stay in two and three-story resident cottages. Available to residents are swimming pool, tennis courts, handball, basketball, volleyball, billiards, and table tennis.

Daniel Little
The Rev. G. Daniel Little, executive director of the General Assembly Mission

Council, will attend the conference and annual meeting of the Synod. He will address the Synod July 8 concerning the mission of the National and International Denominational family.

Little will be available during the rest of the conference to interact with people on an informal basis. In this way, he will demonstrate how Presbyterians are connected with a worldwide Christian community.

Descriptions of the mission within the Synod family will be on display in a Mission Fair. The Presbyteries, Synod commissions and other mission areas of the Synod have been requested to participate. They will tell "their story" of their own particular mission.

A high point in the Synod meeting and conference is expected to be the worship experiences. The Sanctuary Choir of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Los Angeles, will be in concert July 8. The choir has performed extensively in the greater Los Angeles area. Their repertoire includes classical and spirituals.

An evening worship celebrating Wholeness in Jesus Christ in music, drama and creative dance will be held July 9.

During the first two days of the meeting, while the commissioners are working on Synod business, there will be time for others who enjoy singing to participate in a creative music workshop and the development of a Synod family choir. This choir will participate in the Sunday morning communion service July 10.

Convocations
The first convocation and discussion will center on where people get their ideas about God.

Archie has his own brand. (Cont'd on pg. 15)

Health Tips

Pulmonary emphysema

EDITOR'S NOTE: Health Tips is a column of the California Medical Education and Research Foundation, prepared and edited by physician members of the California Medical Association. It is reprinted by this newspaper as a public service.

Pulmonary emphysema is a potentially serious lung disorder. It is particularly prevalent in the middle years and beyond. The disease tends to develop gradually, and all too often it has reached an advanced stage before the patient seeks medical treatment.

Symptoms which should suggest a visit to the doctor include shortness of breath even on mild exertion, inability to breathe deeply and rapidly, persistent coughing and wheezing, and the production of considerable mucus. Dizziness and fatigue on mild exertion may also occur.

Coughing and wheezing are also symptoms of asthma and chronic bronchitis. In fact, in many patients asthma and bronchitis may precede or coexist with emphysema.

Asthma and bronchitis are disorders of the bronchial tubes — the passageways through which air reaches the lungs. With emphysema, there is damage to the lung itself. The walls between the tiny air sacs in the lung deteriorate and the lung loses its elasticity. As a result, there is difficulty exhaling, and breathing becomes difficult and very tiring. Eventually the patient may have a problem getting an adequate supply of oxygen to the blood.

At times, almost everyone experiences shortness of breath and some cough. There are many disorders other than emphysema, asthma or bronchitis that produce these symptoms, and persons with no chronic lung disease may have them. Simple tests of lung function can indicate whether or not emphysema or another disease is responsible for the symptoms. Having these tests early may relieve the patient of needless anxiety. More importantly, they should be done early to detect the disease before irreversible damage has developed. The "typical" emphysema patient when first seen by a doctor for shortness of breath already has suffered an appreciable amount of lung destruction. Such damage cannot be reversed, but there is a good deal that a doctor, with the patient's cooperation, can do to slow progression of the disease and to minimize complications.

The causes of emphysema are not fully known. Smoking seems to be a major factor. There may be an hereditary factor in some cases, where a protein deficiency or abnormality deprives the lung of its normal protection. Once the disease begins, lung deterioration is markedly accelerated by smoking and by exposure to air pollution.

The patient with emphysema who quits smoking can expect some improvement in his or her symptoms as inflammation of the airways subsides. Clearing of the airways may be aided by the following supportive measures:

- High fluid intake (10 to 12 glasses of water or juice per day) to keep the sputum more fluid so as to aid in the raising of secretions.
- Avoidance of irritating inhalants such as dust, fumes and polluted air.
- Antibiotic therapy at the first sign of a chest cold.
- Yearly flu immunization.
- Avoidance of crowds when respiratory infections are prevalent.
- Use of air conditioners in hot weather and masks in cold weather to help prevent bouts of shortness of breath.

— Maintenance of proper posture so that gravity will assist the removal of secretions. Proper breathing is often "discovered" by the patient. Pursing the lips so as to keep the small airways from collapsing during exhalation and deliberately taking three times as long for exhalation as for inhalation are useful measures to enhance exchange of gases in the patient's lungs.

One of the most essential aspects of treatment is exercise conditioning. The patient who follows a regular, sustained exercise program will uniformly improve exercise capability. This improvement helps him or her perform more activity with less shortness of breath. The patient can use a stationary exercise bicycle, walk or ride a bicycle for a certain distance that can be gradually increased both in distance and speed. This sort of exercise program should be undertaken only after a physician evaluates the heart and lung function to determine the safety of such a program. Emphysema cannot be cured but if it is detected early contributing factors can be eliminated and the rate of development may be slowed down. The patient must come to terms with the disease but that need not mean giving up work, family relationships and the other gratifications of a full life.

How to save oil

The average family consumes the equivalent of about a barrel of oil a year — 42 gallons — just watching television.

That may be hard to visualize, because the relationship between electricity and oil is an indirect one.

An oil corporation notes that saving electricity can also mean saving oil and that 500-kilowatt hours — the amount needed to run a color TV set for a year — requires the energy equivalent of 42 gallons of oil.

These other examples show how much oil equivalent is needed yearly to fuel our electrical appliances:

- An electric water heater, the largest energy user in the home, used energy equal to more than 150 gallons of oil annually.
- A refrigerator consumes the equivalent of about 80 gallons.
- A single 100-watt bulb burning for six hours a day uses the equivalent of more than 20 gallons of oil.

1. Which age group is the chief victims of fire?
A. Young C. Aged

Church News (Concluded)

Pastoral Relations Committee of which Mildred Reed is the chairwoman.

Fellowship Brethren

The Fellowship Church of the Brethren will hold its annual church birthday celebration 5:30 p.m. Sunday. Charles Hedrick will relate some of the information he has collected in connection with research with the Nag Hammadi Codices in his six trips to Egypt since 1971. Hedrick is a research associate at the Institute of Antiquity and Christianity in Claremont and a translator of the English language edition of the Nag Hammadi Codices. He will receive his PhD in New Testament studies in June from Claremont Graduate School. Refreshments will be served. At the 10:45 a.m. service the Rev. Stephen White will speak on "Testing the Spirits." Scripture will be from 1 John 4: 1-19. Charles Lovelace, a La Verne College student, will be worship leader.

Lectureship

Marcus Payne, narrator for "Prophecy Speaks" series, will open a four-week lectureship in Covina beginning Saturday. All meetings will convene at 7:30 nightly (except Monday and Thursday) at the Adventist auditorium, 1067 E. Badillo St. His opening topic Saturday will be "Two Minutes to Midnight — Is Time Running Out?" The public is invited to these free lectures.

DB Presbyterian

Two unusual services have been planned for Sunday at Northminster Presbyterian Church, 400 S. Rancheria Road, Diamond Bar. At 9 a.m., the youth in grades 4-6 will present an original musical written by Janet Scott of Hacienda Heights. Miss Scott completed the project while studying at California State University, Fullerton. At the 10:30 a.m. worship service, a missionary who served in Ludhiana, India, 1917-58 will discuss the mission of the church.

Bethany Baptist

"...And That's the Truth" a musical by Flo Price, will be presented 6 p.m. Sunday at Bethany Baptist Church of Montclair by Bethany's children's choir, the New Creation, under the direction of Darlene Weber, minister of music. The story is about a boy who tells lies and the consequences of this in his relationships with others. Dr. A.M. Engle, minister of visitation and senior adults at Bethany, will bring the message "To Him Be the Glory" at Bethany's 11 a.m. worship service.

LV Presbyterian

"Prayers in the Key of Life" will be the title of the Rev. Vic Pentz' concluding sermon Sunday in his 15-week series from Romans at La Verne Heights Presbyterian Church. His text will be Romans 15:30 — "Now, my brothers, I am going to ask you ... to stand behind me in earnest prayer to God on my behalf." Planned for the summer months is a unique series of sermons based on topical concerns gleaned from Rev. Pentz' conversations with members.

Unitarian Society

"The Good Life" will be the sermon topic of the Rev. Ernest Howard 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Unitarian Society of Pomona Valley, 9185 Monte Vista, Montclair. Church school classes for children will be held at the same time. Nursery care will be available.

Walnut Methodist

United Methodist Church of Walnut will hold its annual Mission Spaghetti Dinner, for Tom and Jan Sparrow in Ecuador, 5-7 p.m. Saturday at the church. The Bible study on Luke will continue 7-8 p.m. May 22 and 29 at the church. Babysitting will be provided.

Grace Baptist

The subject of spiritual gifts is being explored in depth by H. Ronald Harper, pastor of Grace Baptist Church, 1515 S. Glendora Ave., Glendora. "What Is A Spiritual Gift?" and "What Are The Spiritual Gifts?" are two topics which have already been dealt with by Harper. The topics coming up on successive Sunday evenings — starting May 22 — are as follows: "What Are The Spiritual Gifts?" (continued); "How Do I Determine My Gift?"; "Why Are The Spiritual Gifts Given?"; "What Should Result From The Use and Development of My Gift?"; "How Do I Serve In Areas That Are Not My Gift?"; and concluding on June 26, "The Most Important Thing To Remember About My Gift." The public is invited.

'All in the Family' (Concluded)

Marsh noted: "He made every one the same religion — Christians. Which he named after his son, Christian %, or Christ for short. And that's how it was for years. One religion. Until they started splitting 'em up into all them other denominations. But, there's still only one religion. His up there."

The second convocation and discussion will concentrate on how people sometimes will not allow themselves to participate in the joy and celebration of the gospel.

"The effect the self-righteous have on others is bad enough, but what they do to themselves is worse. They actually become spiritual cripples who are unable to enjoy life to the full. We get a glimpse of this in the inability of the older brother to accept his father's urging to come to the party and enjoy the friends and music and dancing," Marsh said.

Archie has been disabled in the same way. He is allergic to parties, joy and hilarity. His attitude at Christmas is a good example.

Archie: "Stifle, Edith. Let's have a little silent night around here for a change ... I'm the only one around here thinking of the real solemn meaning of Christmas. Which is supposed to be a time of peace and quiet contemplation."

Edith: "But I think you're allowed to be jolly too."

Archie: "Sure, Edith. I never said you shouldn't be jolly. Just be jolly with your mouth shut."

The last convocation and discussion will focus on the equality and inclusiveness in Christ, people in the church promise but sometimes fail to provide.

Diseases costly

Cardiovascular diseases cost American industry about 52 million days of production each year, in addition to incalculable losses in management and production skills, labor turnover, personnel training and development, says the American Heart Association.

Boating safety

Here's a safe boating tip from the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary — don't learn boating by the hit-n-miss method. Sign up for boating classes. For information, contact the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary (714) 629-5594.

glimpses here and there; and also when they retrace the steps of their honeymoon. It's like pulling teeth, but he does very occasionally — awkwardly admit his real feeling."

When Archie does not make the bowling team he goes to Kelsey's Tavern.

Kelsey listens and gives solice. "The expression on Archie's face as he leaves the tavern and moves into the darkness speaks from the depths of his soul. It says, "If only I could find a church that had the camaraderie of the bowling team and the sympathy of a tavern." Send reservations to: Synod of Southern California, 1501 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles 90017.
